The Global Executive Network (G.E.N.) Invites New Members to its Professional Council

Executives in global companies can apply for the exclusive honorary position of professional council member

Wilmington, USA, 26 April 2010

The Global Executive Network (G.E.N.), an international provider of high-quality networking events covering current trends for industry-focused and management-related topics, invites new members to its professional council. Executives in global companies can apply for the exclusive honorary position of professional council member and thus participate in this selected executive network.

G.E.N. events cover over 50 different subjects every year, focusing on business or industry topics for managers. They take place as moderated networking dinners in exclusive locations. The professional council of The Global Executive Network ensures that every G.E.N. event meets high professional standards and that all events are relevant to the market. This advisory board currently counts over 40 managers from all over the world who work in leading positions for international companies of different sectors of industry. The Global Executive Network places great importance on the selection of the individual council members so that this institution has become an exclusive and international circle of executives.

In their role as professional council member, managers benefit from being part of an international cross-industry and cross-functional network. This gives them the opportunity to establish interesting contacts at the same level, to exchange strategies and experiences and to contribute to creating a high-level event program for managers.

„The exchange of ideas and opinions on up-to-date topics with other council members coming from diverse industries and with knowledge in different business areas is a source of expertise and inspiration for me“, says Heiko Scharding, Team Manager Enterprise Content Management & Master Data at Kuehne + Nagel in Hamburg, Germany.

All council members meet once a year for the annual conference which provides ample opportunity for discussions among the participating executives. All other activities, such as working to ensure the quality of individual events, are optional and depend on the availability of the respective member. The reality shows that the network is being very active. The next annual conference will take place at Castle Fuschl in Salzburg, Austria, on 3 July 2010.

The council meetings in the USA will take place in the following cities: New York City on 26 May, Boston on 28 May, Orlando on 31 May, Atlanta on 2 June, Chicago on 7 June, Houston on 9 June, Denver on 11 June, Las Vegas on 14 June, San Francisco on 17 June, San Diego on 21 June and Los Angeles on 24 June.

The council meetings in Europe will take place in: Hamburg on 26 March, Lisbon on 15 April, Zurich on 4 May, Munich on 29 July, Frankfurt on 26 August, Vienna on 16 September, Hamburg on 30 September, Salzburg on 7 October, Barcelona on 28 October and Madrid on 11 November.

Executives who are interested in participating in this international advisory board can write to the e-mail address below to get further information, to contact current members or to register for one of the above mentioned events in order to get a clearer picture of the professional council: council@theglobalexecutivenetwork.com.
